DEMOLIZING ARMY
GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

The demobilization of our army to date was declared one of the greatest accomplishments of the war by Secretary Baker today in a statement pointing out the comparison between the figures in this war and those of '98 and '65. The Secretary laid particular emphasis upon the great record of transportation achieved in returning the men from France.

"The demobilization record to date is one of the most splendid successes of the war," said the Secretary. "It ranks favorably with the greatest achievements of the war. In one month alone we brought home more than a third of a million men, this with little help from the British and French shipping, which had largely been withdrawn at that time. The British and French took more than fifty per cent of our men overseas, but almost single-handed we brought back as many as 364,000 men in the month of June, more than were ever transported overseas in a single month.

"Demobilization during the present war has far eclipsed the work either of the Civil or the Spanish war. To date we have brought back from overseas more than 1,888,000 men. We have demobilized all but about 500,000 of our four million men.

Old Records Beaten

"In one month after the signing of the Armistice we had demobilized 351,206 men and 16,000 officers. In 1893 it took ten months to muster out 197,397 of the 216,250 officers and men serving when the American force in that war was at its peak. Certain units were demobilized from the Philippines even later than that. In the Civil War the strength of the volunteer army was 1,034,064 when demobilization began. It took from May 1, 1865, to November 1, 1866, or eighteen months to muster out this force. In approximately two and a half months after the Armistice we had mustered out 1,023,884 and 62,000 officers, thus more than equaling the eighteen month record of the civil war.

"The movement homeward and demobilization of troops began almost contemporaneously with the signing of the Armistice. At the time the President, going abroad in March, ordered rapid demobilization the first processes were well under way and from that time on we have carried out a program of demobilization that is almost astounding under circumstances of transportation and other difficulties that had to be overcome.

"There are at present approximately 350,000 emergency troops to be discharged. There are less than 100,000 men now in Europe and under present plans there will be less than 35,000 men in France on September 1. There are already more than a hundred thousand new enlistments and about 85,000 new enlistments are needed to bring the enlisted quota of the army up to the authorized 225,000 strength."

Further figures on enlistments in the regular army show that 21,671 of the men newly enlisted have expressed their preferences as regards places of service. Of these 12,754 have expressed a desire to serve in Europe. Among the branches of service preferences given 37,344 want to serve in the infantry, while 11,878 express a preference for cavalry.

A Community Picnic

The Emergency Aid of the community surrounding Loysburg is preparing an old time table picnic in honor of the boys from this community who have returned from the service of the country. The plan is to have everybody in the community interested in this reception to our boys. Therefore, we are asking everybody to come with baskets of food which we will place upon one large table around which all will gather and eat a meal in common with our heroes.

The time when this picnic is to be held is Thursday afternoon September 18, and the place of the picnic is the ground surrounding the Loysburg school.

The Saleville Band has consented to furnish the music and Rev. Littleton, lawyer Claycomb from Altoona and Lawyer Sell from Bedford have been secured for the addresses. This program will begin at 2:30 in the afternoon.

ADDRESS BY MR. F. E. STEELE

At Hyndman Labor Meeting

Mr. Chairman and Brothers, I came here with no expectation of making an address, but I will say a few words in regard to this Labor movement. Sometime ago the Labor men of Bedford County met and organized a Labor League. I happened to be attending a convention in Columbus, Ohio at this time as soon as I returned I joined. There has been a lot of misunderstanding about this organization. Every man or Labor Man in Bedford County should consider and think over it and then get it. There were men at this convention representing machinists car workers, electricians and Boilermakers of the Pennsylvania Railroad system, east and west of Pittsburgh.

The Labor League woke up to the fact that they would have to present a full ticket on Republican, Democrat, and Socialist and agreed that each candidate should fully understand this organization regardless of its politics and we want the Laboring man to support us at the coming election. Tuesday one week each Laborer will be given a chance to do his duty. Out of three tickets only one will be selected for each office, and the other candidates as fellow laborers will be expected to back him up. Next January of coming year we expect a State and National organization of Laboring men so as we can have men in State and National offices. There are some expenses along with this work in Bedford County but if we won't get anything unless you work for it. When you work for a Railroad Company or any other Company they do not just hand you things, you've got to work and fight for them.

Brothers eighty per cent of men in this Country are Laboring men and should have some say as to handling of business of this Country. They say the majority should rule and if eighty per cent are Laboring men they should have some say. Some men say how are they going to run when it's only the ranks of Labor, but let me tell you we are just as well qualified as the men they have there at the present time, and we should not listen to these men for they would do anything to gain their own ends. Many of the people do not realize the objects and aims of organized labor. I do not think it would be much trouble to any of you men in Hyndman if I would ask five or ten men to stand to your feet and give me your name so I can give you some circulars to be distributed among the Laboring men of your town. If you can not do this I am sure you could get a boy to do it. I am more than pleased with the way you men have responded to our call. I will request the stenographer to take the names of men standing. We have one man from your town as candidate and would have more but we had not the time, and the vacant places on these tickets are through no fault of ours. We had men for these places but some disappointed us and another's papers were stolen so I ask you again to study this matter over, you labor men think once for your selves, and cast your vote on Sept. 16, 1919, so it will bring results and more happiness and pleasure to you and yours. I think my colleague and I have thoroughly explained this movement to you, therefore we are going to let the decisions be made by you on September 16, 1919.

We men of the north end of Bedford County thank you for our cordial treatment while being in your town and hope you will give us the same opportunity to return your favor at an early date. I thank you

National Events
In A Nutshell

Labor leaders asked President Wilson to avert a strike at the United States Steel Corporation. Eighteen Hundred 1st Division men landed in New York. Senate foreign relations committee designs amendments to the peace treaty giving America equal voting power with England. Senator Hitchcock claimed that amendment to the treaty would be suicidal. Vice Admiral Albert Gleaves was promoted to full admiral. Secretary Daniels witnessed the naval review of the Pacific fleet at San Francisco. Railway shopen rejected the President's offer for a wage settlement but voted not to strike now. The U. S. Senate unanimously conferred upon Gen Pershing the permanent rank of General and makes the day of the review of the First Division a legal holiday. William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, resigned in order to take personal business affairs. President Wilson finds favor with his audience on his western trip. The President asked for a conference of capital and labor early in October.

Come on! Lose a day to vote.

Vote for all the candidates at the polls.

Go to the election next Tuesday and vote.

Tuesday next is the day to vote. Don't forget to exercise your right to vote. Vote for all the offices no matter whether there is opposition or not. This is important.

WHAT AUTOMOBILE
TOURISTS SPEND

The ban on traveling abroad during the war has resulted in increased travel in our own country. It is safe to say that much of the traveling within the borders of the United States will be automobile touring as it has the increased appeal in the popular sense to the American people.

As a basis for estimating the amount of motor travel let us consider one of the well known highways, the Lincoln Highway for instance. Various estimates state that from 50,000 to 100,000 tourists have used that great thoroughfare for long distance traveling in the past year.

As a unit for estimating, we will use 10,000 motorists, estimating this number will travel 46,000,000 miles. These 10,000 cars will average 10 miles to a gallon of gasoline thus using 4,600,000 gallons. They will travel 200 miles to each gallon of lubricating oil thus using 230,000 gallons of lubricating oil. They will perhaps wear out a set of tires for each 5,000 miles, they will therefore need 9,200 sets of tires. Putting these facts into figures they will spend the following:

4,600,000 Gallons of Gasoline at .25 would amount to $1,150,000.00.
230,000 Gallons of Oil at .60 would amount to $138,000.00.
9,200 Sets of Tires at $125.00 would amount to $1,150,000.00.

Total on cars $2,438,000.00.

This is only an indication of what the garage men, filling station agents and accessory dealers might expect in the way of business, but this is not all. There will be hotel and restaurant patronage, clothing and wearing apparel for the entire family, in fact all of the money spent by these motorists along the way will go into diversified channels of business and into the pockets and tills of merchants and shopkeepers of all classes.

Farmers' Institutes

Four sessions of Farmers Institutes will be held in Bedford County this year and persons desiring that a session of the institutes be held in their community should communicate with the County Chairman, Ralph Hoover R. D. 1, Everett, Pa.

Local committees in places where institutes are to be held should be appointed to work with the county chairman and the local committee should furnish the hall for the meeting free of charge.

The main purpose of the institutes is to discuss agricultural problems and two special speakers will be present at each session and will discuss with the farmers the problems of greatest importance in their community. The department and the County chairman are in favor of giving the women part on the program and it is believed that a few songs by the audience will tend to enliven the meetings and each county chairman is requested to send to the department one or two songs especially desirable.

The institutes this year will be held in four different places in the county and will be one-day sessions. If you desire to have one of these sessions in your community write at once to the County Chairman

Releases Of Military
Prisoners Total 10,000

Releases of military prisoners through expiration of sentences and by the exercise of clemency on the part of the Executive Clemency Board of the War Department have totaled approximately 10,000 since the signing of the armistice. Official figures from the department show that only about 6,000 prisoners remain in all military places of confinement.

This figure compares more than favorably with the 2,000 men of the regular army held prisoners in confinement paces before the war. There were nearly 300 men of the regular army in military penitentiaries or prisons under sentence for felonies and grave military offenses. There are only about 600 men so confined now out of the army of four and a half million mustered for the war. Of the six thousand men now in military confinement, it is estimated the Board of Executive Clemency has reduced about eighty per cent, and many cases are still under consideration.

Those who spent Labor Day with Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Mowry of Morgantown West Virginia were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Studebaker and son 'Billy' Miss Mary Studebaker, Miss Beatrice Boden of Pittsburgh; Mrs. George W. Backburn of New Paris; Mr. Harry Studebaker and wife of Johnstown and Mr. T. R. Studebaker of Cessna.

The Directors and Officers of the Bedford County Fair have been working hard and all arrangements have been made for our Big Fair, and it is now up to every Farmer and all other interested in the Fair to end it helping hand so that this will be one of the Biggest and Best Fairs ever held.

You cast your vote next Tuesday for your candidate.

Do your duty to your party next Tuesday by turning out to vote.

Vote next Tuesday for the candidate of your choice.

POMONA GRANGE
HOLDS MEETING

Bedford County Pomona Grange met in the K. of P. Lodge room, Thursday September 4. There was a good attendance considering the busy season. The forenoon session was devoted to the hearing of reports of subordinate granges, committees, and the insurance director. There was a good increase in membership and an increase of $9.919 in insurance. The Farm Bureau committee reported that one commissioner favored the appropriation and two opposed it, or refused to act on it. The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of Agriculture as it appeals to the farmer today, by different members of the order.

At the evening session Rev. H. G. Teagarden of Punxsutawney, lecturer of State Grange gave a very timely and enthusiastic address and was greatly appreciated by the members of the order. The following resolution was then passed by a large majority of the members.

Resolved that the Bedford county Pomona Grange take non-partisan steps to secure county commissioners who will support the Farm Bureau; and that the Pomona Master, be instructed to inform the various Masters of Subordinate granges of the stand of the present and prospective county commissioners.

The Providence grange deserves great credit for the excellent duets rendered at the evening session. Eleven new members were then instructed in the fifth degree after which grange closed in regular form to meet December 4th, 1919.

Overcrowded Schools
Are a Problem

Our public schools opened on Monday morning at 9:00 o'clock. Such a large number of students was not expected. Although many of the grade rooms are overcrowded, the greatest congestion occurs in the Freshman class. Returns of the registration for High School students on Monday showed 62 Freshmen, 28 Sophomores, 14 Juniors and 15 Seniors.

Only one of the High School rooms will accommodate the Freshmen class. This class is also to large for instruction in the High School subjects, so it needs must be divided into sections.

The school administration is working earnestly on this problem, and it is hoped that a solution will be forthcoming.

Possibly part of the Sub-Freshmen class, which has an enrollment of 19, will pass the make-up examinations; this will admit them into the already overcrowded Freshmen class. The number of pupils enrolled in each grade is as follows:

First grade, primary, Miss Bain teacher, 49.
Second grade primary Miss Knight teacher, 55.
Third grade, primary, Miss Donahue teacher, 56.
Fourth grade, Miss Hoover, teacher, 54.
Fifth grade, Miss Hunt teacher, 32.
Sixth grade, Miss Armstrong teacher, 31.
Seventh grade, Miss Lessig, teacher, 37.
Eighth grade, Miss F.P. teacher, 34.
The total enrollment for the grades is 369 and for the High School, 129, this makes a grand total of 507 pupils.

Are you going to vote next Tuesday?

Every Democratic voter is respectfully urged to go to the polls on Tuesday, September 16th, and exercise what should be his most cherished right of citizenship, namely voting for the candidate of his choice for the respective county offices to be filled at the coming election. For some of the county offices there is but one candidate. However, he does not fail to vote for such candidate, although he has no opposition for the nomination. It is important that you should vote for the candidate who has no opposition as well as for the candidate of your choice who may have opposition. You should vote for a candidate for every office. . . .

FARM ANIMALS

FEED SHEEP IN CORNFIELDS

Practice Has Proved Satisfactory in Saving Considerable Labor in Many States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ordinarily the management of the farm flock of sheep calls for comparatively small demands upon farm labor. The labor cost per dollar's worth of wool or lamb is lower than for any other farm animal product. Yet, while sheep raising does not necessitate expensive equipment or heavy labor, it does require study and continuous attention. However, the effects of the reduced supply of available farm labor, brought about by the drain upon it by the army and war industries, may be counteracted in part by the adoption, where possible, of one or more of the following suggestions:

Some labor can be saved on the stock farm by a more general adoption of the practice of feeding sheep in cornfields. This practice has proved very satisfactory in many states. It, of course, necessitates purchases in the fall and marketing in December or January, and is, therefore, adaptable on a large scale only to such farms or sections as are in a position to make a practice of speculative feeding of live stock, as few farms at present raise a sufficient number of lambs to harvest the grain from a large acreage of corn.

A larger use of forage crops for fattening meat stock can be adopted with a saving of labor. This plan permits the putting on of large gains with crops which are harvested entirely by the animals themselves.

In many sections fall-sown wheat and rye can be grazed by sheep, thereby making a great saving in winter feed as well as in the labor of feeding. In sections such as Tennessee this practice has become very general, and is found to work exceedingly well in the production of winter wheat.

Self-feeders for the feeding of hay to fatten sheep and lambs can be used to good advantage. Although their use in the feeding of grain to hogs will prove very satisfactory in the saving of labor, it is not recommended that they be used in feeding grain to sheep and lambs.

In range sections considerable winter labor can be economized and greater safety secured by the distribution of supplies of feed to strategic points on the winter range. Corn, cottonseed cake, or velvet beans can be stored in metal granaries at points which will permit of their ready distribution to the stock in case of storms, which commonly make it impossible to get feed to the stock from the nearest railroad points. In the event of a very open winter this feed may deteriorate during the following summer. In most sections, however, the climate is sufficiently dry to allow it to remain in storage for use in good condition during the second winter.

In the past, injury has been done by advocating sheep raising on lands where little or no labor or attention is needed and farms are thereby cleaned of weeds. So far as their appetite for weeds is concerned, sheep may be regarded to some extent as scavengers. They will eat most weeds, and on any farm will reduce greatly the amount of hand labor needed to hold weeds in check on the areas of pasture and grain crops. It is a mistake, however, to advocate the raising of sheep where the main interest is in weed control.

While the labor required for sheep production is continuous, it is not heavy, and if properly supervised can well be performed by boys or aged men incapable of other kinds of farm labor, and by girls and women. Sheep management can be learned and understood and the labor performed by anyone who is willing to observe carefully and think and attend to the details as attention is required.

It must be understood, however, that sheep raising should not be engaged in with an idea that little attention is required. The wants of sheep are numerous and varied, and frequent attention is required to forestall conditions that will result in ill health or lack of thrift. At lambing time frequent attendance day and night is necessary to avoid losses of ewes and young lambs.

USE FEED TROUGHS FOR PIGS

Should Be Constructed So That Each Little Porker Will Get His Full Share.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Young pigs should be given their feeds in such a manner that each individual pig gets its share. The simplest way to accomplish this is to allow the pigs to eat from a properly constructed feed trough, one that will keep the pigs out of the feed and will lessen the possibility of crowding.

SYSTEM OF SHEEP FARMING

To Be Successful Wool or Mutton Cannot Be Ignored—Two Products Profitable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A system of sheep farming that is to be continuously successful can not ignore either wool or mutton. In many cases the two products will be worthy of equal consideration. In others either one may be emphasized according to the peculiarities of conditions, management, and marketing.

BEST TIME FOR SOWING RAPE

If Done at Last Cultivation of Corn Lambs Can Be Turned Into Corn-field in Autumn.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is good practice to sow rape at the last cultivation of corn. The lambs can then be turned into the cornfield in the fall and will feed upon the lower leaves of the corn and rape and make excellent gains.

WORK AND SAVE IS REMEDY FOR HIGH PRICE EPIDEMIC

Federal Reserve Board Tells U. S. Senate How Thrift Will Bring Relief.

Washington, Aug. 20—"To work and save" is the remedy for the increasing cost of living pointed out recently by the Federal Reserve Board.

In reply to an inquiry from the Senate Banking Committee asking if it was advisable to attempt contraction of currency by legislation to the hope of reducing prices, Governor Harding wrote Chairman McLean that the growth in the volume of circulating notes was the effect and not the cause of advancing wages and prices, and that the war period of finance would not be over until government obligations, now carried by the banks are absorbed through the actual savings of the people.

Strong censure of strikes and extravagance was implied in Mr. Harding's letter, which did not, however, undertake to blame any one section of the population, but referred to the nation as a whole, especially to the relation of economies practiced during the war and the purchase now of non-essential articles by persons enjoying large incomes for the first time.

"The Federal Reserve Board believes that any currency legislation at this time is unnecessary and undesirable," Mr. Harding wrote, "and would suggest that the remedy for the present situation is to work and to save, to work regularly and efficiently, in order to distribute the largest possible volume of commodities, and to exercise reasonable economies in order that money, goods and services may be devoted primarily to the liquidation of debt and to the satisfaction of demand for necessities, rather than to indulge in extravagances or the gratification of a desire to luxuriate."

The government is doing everything to promote reasonable saving. Government Thrift and Savings Stamps and U. S. Treasury Savings Certificates permit of regular saving in amounts from 25 cents to $1000 invested in safe securities to fit every person's need.

PROPER FEEDING IN SUMMER

Not Advisable to Give Too Rich Food During Extremely Hot Days—Not Easily Handled.

It is best not to feed too heavily, or of too rich food, during the extremely hot days which are experienced occasionally in summer because overloaded digestive systems cannot handle the food as well in the extreme heat.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 14

THE JUDGMENT OF THE NATIONS.

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 25:31-46
GOLDEN TEXT—For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ.—II Cor. 5:10.

The subject selected by the lesson committee is "The Future Life," but at best such a statement would be the use of the term in an accommodated sense. According to legitimate textual and contextual signification it is the judgment of the living nations which lies still in the future (v. 32). The idea of a general judgment which is of such frequent occurrence in religious literature and teaching is a fundamental error. It is not once found in the Bible, neither the idea which it is intended to convey. Doctor Pentecost most distinctively says, "It is a mischievous habit that has led the Christian world to speak of the judgment as being one great event taking place at the end of the world, when all human beings, saints, sinners, Jews and Gentiles, the living and the dead, shall stand up before the great white throne and there be judged. Nothing can be more wide of the Scriptures." The Bible speaks of different judgments, differing in respect to the subjects to be judged, the place of judgment, the time of judgment and the result of the judgment. This is not the judgment set forth in Revelation 20:11-14, but precedes that one at least one thousand years.

I. The Judge (v. 31).

It is the Son of Man, the one who came and died to redeem the human race, and who now being clothed with majesty and power will act as judge. Those who accept him now shall not come into the judgment (John 5:24).

II. The Time (v. 31).

This will be when the Lord comes in his glory, accompanied by a retinue of glorious angels. This will take place after he has gathered the elect remnant of Israel. There will be no resurrection in connection with this judgment.

III. The Place (v. 31).

It will be on his glorious throne. This throne will be most surely in the land of Israel. The Prophecy of Joel, third chapter, and Zechariah 14:1-5, make it to be in or near Jerusalem. The angel said to Mary, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus; he shall be great and shall be called the son of the highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." (Luke 1:31-33). Just as there was a literal place and a literal king there shall be a literal throne.

IV. The People Judged (vv. 32-45).

These will be the living nations upon the earth after the church has been translated (I Thess. 4:16, 17). These are the nations to whom the gospel of the kingdom shall be preached, just prior to the coming of the end. "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and then shall the end come" (Matt. 24:14). This gospel is distinguished from the gospel of the grace of God which is now being preached. The preachers of this gospel will be Jews (Rev. 7 and Rom. 11). These are the brethren in the flesh, of the Lord, they that move among the nations of the world with the startling message of the news of the Lord's approaching kingdom. Some of the nations will gladly receive the message and most kindly receive the king's messengers, giving them clothing, food, shelter, etc. Others will persecute them, thrusting them into prison, etc. Here the former will visit these messengers of the king and provide for their wants. At this time the judge will separate the nations, placing the sheep on the right and the goats on the left. The "sheep" are those who have given proper treatment to Christ's brethren. The goats are those who rejected and ill-treated his brethren. If these three classes, the "sheep," "goats," "brethren," be kept separate all confusion will be avoided.

V. The Issue of the Judgment. (v. 46, cf. 34-41).

1. The sheep enter upon the inheritance of a prepared kingdom (v. 34).
2. The goats go into an everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels (v. 46). This judgment shall determine their destiny.

The Secret of Comfort.

The chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex us, and in prudently cultivating our undergrowth of small pleasures, since very few great ones, alas! are let on long leases.—Sharp.

Love Thy Neighbors.

I would tear out my own heart if it had no better disposition than to love only myself, and laugh at all my neighbors.—Pope.

Live by the Day.

The secret of a sweet and Christian life is learning to live by the day. It is the long stretches that tire us.

Heat ALL Your House THROUGH ONE REGISTER

Yes, it's just as possible in your home as it has been in fifty thousand others. You, too, may have every room comfortable with balmy healthful heat, reaching every corner by Nature's method of circulation—and all through only one register! It isn't necessary to clutter up your house with pipes, overheat your cellar and incur big bills—not when you can get the

PIPELESS
CALORIC
The Original Patented Pipeless Furnace

It can be set up in a day, without inconvenience to you, and will make your home so comfortable in the severest winter weather you will be well repaid.

Your house will be uniformly warm; your cellar will be just right for the storage of fruits and vegetables. Your fuel bill will be less than with stoves that heat only a part of your house.

HERE ARE THE REASONS

The Caloric is the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace—the result of the study of competent engineers to solve the heating problem in the most satisfactory way. That they have succeeded is proved by the fact that the number of Caloric sold on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction is three times greater than any other pipeless furnace.

The cause of this satisfaction lies in the patented and exclusive principles that distinguish the Caloric from all others. It is not a pipe furnace provided with an extra casting, but a complete revolution in furnace building designed exclusively for pipeless heating.

Come In And See Us

We will show you what these principles are, and you will then see what Caloric quality means, why it always succeeds and why imitations cannot accomplish the same results. Then you will be in no danger of buying an inferior article, with all its disappointment in later months. Get a copy of the book "Progress," which tells the facts about pipeless heating. If you can't come in, write for it.

Inspection Invited

By ZONA FROST

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"There, by crickets," said Tommy, eyeing with pride the brand-new sign he had just dangled from the old arm on the end of the gate post. "If that don't fetch 'em, nothing will, Gwen. Pretty nifty, ain't it, even if your little brud did do it for you."

Gwyn rested from her labors and smiled with deep satisfaction. The sign was conspicuous, but not rudely so, and it was to the point.

FINEST HAND LAUNDERING.
INSPECTION INVITED.

"It was hard to get it all there, too, I want you to know," added Tom. "Think folks'll talk much?"

"Who cares how much they talk; go 'long, boy!" Uncle Peter brushed him to one side disdainfully. "Miss Gwen ain't goin' ter touch any washin', is she? She's jes' the official negotiator. Julia's goin' ter turn out all de hand washin' dey send along."

"Wouldn't the major just chew nails if he could see it?" Gwen smiled happily. "It's so nice to have an illustrious father who never comes to see you, and is around on the other side of the world most of the time. I really think dad believes we live on honey and cream and sunshine, Tommy. We'll get some good roast beef once more and a whole barrel of flour at once, instead of rations. You've got to drive after all laundry and deliver it on Saturday, Tom. I'll do it week days."

Glendale was treated to the surprise of years when the full significance of the sign on the old Hilbert place dawned on its inhabitants. Certainly the two Hilbert children were liable to do anything radical, coming from the stock they did, but at least they were supposed to keep to the line, socially. When Gwen drove calmly around the small town in her smart yellow cart culling for and delivering laundry as if she were scattering blessings broadcast, even little Miss Carey, the dressmaker, said it did seem as if all shame and decency had gone out of folks when they could take in washing.

But oddly enough the new laundry prospered amazingly. For the guests at the two hotels at the springs had never heard of Major Hilbert or his children, and after the first samples of Aunt Julia's washing reached customers, Gwen found she could control the summer trade.

So the big grove back of the smoke house became a huge open-air laundry where Aunt Julia reigned supreme over five helpers, and Uncle Peter drove the yellow cart now instead of Gwen. It was quite enough work to manage the little office she had opened off the dining room, and keep track of everything.

And before the first month was over there was such a wonderful balance to the good that Gwen ran out to the grove and hugged Aunt Julia before everybody, and cried a little on her ample shoulder.

"We'll pay up every last blessed bill in three months if this keeps up," she exclaimed. "You darling, you. Aunt Julia, I declare I'll give you a pale pink velvet robe of glory for this. Do you know we've got every one of the new guests, every last one? This Mrs. Ramsen is a dear old thing. She's got two sons coming on from somewhere today, and she says they always wear pongee pajamas, and she's never yet found a laundry could do them up right. We will, won't we, auntie?"

The next morning the yellow cart stopped outside the iron rail fence, and Gwen saw that Uncle Peter had some one with him, some one who hurried up the walk to the veranda and rang the bell outside the screen door energetically. She answered it herself. He seemed very nice and very tall and boyish.

"Well, you see," he began cheerfully. "You're Miss Hilbert, aren't you? I'm Dick Remsen. My brother and I came on last night from New York and I promised your father I'd call at once."

"Dad? Is he over here?" gasped Gwen, glancing at the sign instinctively. "Oh, horrors!"

"He's not hurt a bit," Dick assured her earnestly. "He's in fine condition, but he can't come on for a while yet. I'm awfully glad to meet you. He's talked about you all so much, you know. I felt as if I could not wait to meet you."

Gwen smiled up at him teasingly. "Are the pongee pajamas yours? Because, if they are, I can tell you right now we'll do them up beautifully. Come on and sit down and tell me all about my forgetful father. Do you think it will shock him to find me in business?"

"It won't shock him, Miss Hilbert," Dick hesitated a minute and plunged. After all, she would have to know sooner or later. "It may startle Mrs. Hilbert, but she's all right. You'll like her."

"Mrs. Hilbert!" repeated Gwen slowly. "You mean dad is married to somebody? That he is bringing any one here—a new wife?"

"Mother likes her immensely. She's an American and very charming. She's due here today or tomorrow. Going to stay with mother first until the major can join her."

"But she mustn't do that," Gwen tried to get a grip on her senses. "She must come here, of course. Dad would wish that. It's the right thing to do." And then she looked at the sign again and it mocked her. "Inspection Invited." And here she was seized with a longing to snatch it down and hide it from the scornful gaze of the interloper. "Won't you please find out when she is to arrive, and—and I'll meet her with your mother."

The major came on a week later, handsomer than ever, and hungry for a sight of the big old house on a knob of the Cumberland. All the way he wondered how he was going to make peace between Gwen and the new mother, and when the train drew in he saw the two standing together, comrades already, with Dick behind them and Uncle Peter waving and wiping his eyes from the express truck.

All the story of the laundry was told on the way home, and at every remonstrance from the major Mrs. Hilbert took Gwen's part. It had been wonderful and remarkable of her, she said, even to try to swing such an undertaking. Gwen's lashes lifted once only to her father's grim face.

"I've paid up every last dollar we owed with those soapuds, Dad."

"And, dear," added his wife, firmly, "I can assure you when we were doing canteen work, very often we women did not only our own washing, but that of others who needed help."

"Mother says our pongee pajamas—" began Dick; then stopped, flushed violently at Gwen's look.

"You needn't have told them about those," she said as they two stood for a moment on the veranda steps together, after the house was reached. "I'm not going to have that sign up all my life, I hope."

"I hope not, too," Dick assented fervently. "I made up my mind the first day I saw it that I'd take it down myself just the minute you gave me a chance. And I'm going to ask for the chance mighty soon, too."

Gwen drew in a deep breath of relief. After all, a good soldier may be permitted to be glad when the war is over.

"I don't care how soon you try it, Dick," she said, and slipped by his reaching arms into the house.

Beautiful Yellowstone Lake.

The Yellowstone lake is a beautiful sheet of water nestling in the mountains, nearly 8,000 feet above the sea. Its waters flow northward, forming the Yellowstone river, a tributary of the Missouri. To many persons, the falls and canyon of this river are the greatest wonders of the park. Soon after leaving the lake, the stream narrows and quickens, and the water leaps 109 feet directly downward. A short distance farther it tumbles 308 feet, or almost twice the height of Niagara. The river then runs between steep walls, which rise 1,000 feet above it. This canyon is somewhat winding, with numerous bold cliffs jutting far out into the abyss; and from these cliffs grand views may be obtained. Far below one sees the silvery stream, too distant to be heard as it dashes along. Across the chasm, a half mile away, dark green pines fringe the bank, and between the water and these woods are gorgeously colored rock walls, having all the tints of the rainbow.

Novel Way to Promote Men.

"If I have a job to fill, and a man who I think will exactly fit it, I do not go to him and tell him so," writes a factory executive in System, the magazine of business. "Instead, I find some opportunity to tell him about the job incidentally, perhaps just as one of the problems I am having to meet, and without connecting it with him at all. Usually, if he is as well fitted for the work as I think he is, he gives me an opening to ask him if he would like to try it—if he himself has not already asked for the chance to try it."

"It is a good deal better, I believe, to let the man take the job by his own choice this way than just to give him the job. You have his unimpaired opinion as well as your own then as to his fitness for it. And the responsibility for his making good rests on him rather than you. Which means, usually, that he will try just so much harder to make good."

African Golf His Hoodoo.

"African golf" proved my undoing," said Private Clarence E. Bruce, Pittsburgh, just back from the war.

"I was a sergeant once and in charge of a heavy gun. I was the boss. But I couldn't hold that job when the boys began 'African golf' right under my nose. When the bones started to roll I began to slip. Well, it was back private again for me when the officers found me down on my knees shooting sevens and eights."

"But, say, maybe those guns of ours didn't do some execution. We cleaned up one town so clean that there wasn't anything alive or whole when the infantry went in. No, sir, not even a dead chicken for our boys."

Valuable Government Report.

The United States geological survey, department of the interior, has issued a report that may be of great value in the search for underground water, oil and gas. This report, prepared by Joseph A. Cushman and issued as Survey Bulletin 674, contains descriptions of some species of Foraminifera from the miocene and pliocene formation of the coastal plain of the United States and is abundantly illustrated with figures, many times magnified, of these minute organisms.

Nearly Repeal One Tax in Three Month's Time

The Sixty Sixth may become famous as the "Soda Water Congress." After a three months' session the Republicans have done little else than pass a bill to repeal the tax on soda water, which would cost the Federal treasury something like $21,000,000 a year. Even the soda water bill however has failed thus far to get out of the inert Senate Committee on Finance, of which Senator Penrose is chairman.

For weeks prior to the issuance of the call for a special session, Republicans were severe in their criticism of the President for failure to convene Congress. One reason they gave for demanding an early convening of Congress was the necessity for legislation to meet the reconstruction problems and particularly that of readjusting taxation.

In his call for the special session, the President recognized the need for constructive legislation, and in his message to Congress at its convening referred specially to matters of taxation.

The Ways and Means committee of the House is the committee whence legislation relating taxation emanates. It is the most important committee in either branch of Congress. Its present chairman is Representative Fordney of Michigan, a Republican.

The committee has no poxy, the Democrats charge. They point to the pages of the Congressional Record for substantiation of what they allege. Instead of grasping the situation, as the emergency requires, and then proceeding to deal with the inequities, the inequalities and the burdensome provisions of the present tax schedules, which were justified in war time, the Republican members of the committee have busied themselves getting through individuals bills to boost the tariff on industries in their respective districts, with a resultant increase in the cost of these articles to the consumer and an addition to the cost of living. The Ways and Means committee has found time during its three months of work to turn its attention to the general war tax system but once, and that resulted in the repeal of the soda water tax by the House.

A comprehensive and intelligent revision of the tax schedules would wipe out injustices and relieve business of its chief source of irritation, and at the same time preserve the necessary revenues, the Democrats point out. By such a course, adequate revenue could be paid without any general increase in tax rates.

TREATY TO END WAR FOREVER

NOT ENTERED INTO MERELY TO END THIS SINGLE WAR—NOTICE TO OTHER GOVERNMENTS

WILSON WARMLY RECEIVED

Important Features of the Pact are Pointed Out—Confident That It Will Be Accepted as Drafted.

(By Mt. Clemens News Bureau.)
St. Louis.—Displaying a high confidence that his fellow citizens in the great majority agree with him in his desire to end war forever, and that they will see to it the peace treaty with its League of Nations inclusion, is ratified by the Senate, President Wilson is making a successful way across the country on the long journey he has undertaken for the purpose of laying before the plain people a report of his work in Paris and explaining to them just what the league means.

Thus far in his travels, he has everywhere met with warm greetings, both in the great halls where he has spoken formally and in the little cross road hamlets where his train has halted at times, and he has exchanged words with the villagers who pressed forward to greet him. He feels, and does not hesitate to say so when challenged with his traveling companions, that the American people want no more of war and want to become part of the league so that there may be no more war. He struck his keynote when he said in his first address, in Columbus, Ohio:

"This treaty was not intended merely to end this single war; it is meant as a notice to every government who in the future will attempt this thing (what Germany attempted) that mankind will unite to inflict the same punishment. There is no national triumph to be recorded in this treaty. There is no glory sought for any particular nation. The thought of the statesmen collected around that table was of their people, of the sufferings they had gone through, of the losses they had incurred, of that great throbbing heart which was so depressed, so forlorn, so sad in every memory it had of the five tragical years that have gone by. Let us never forget those years, my fellow countrymen; let us never forget the purpose, high and disinterested, with which America lent its strength, not for its own glory but for the defense of mankind."

"As I said, this treaty was not intended merely to end this war. It was intended to prevent any similar war. I wonder if some of the opponents of the League of Nations have forgotten the promises we made our people before we went to that peace table. We had taken by processes of law the flower of our youth from every countryside, from every household, and we told those mothers and fathers and sisters and wives and sweethearts that we were taking those men to fight a war which would end business of that sort, and if we do not end it, if we do not do the best that human concert of action can do to end it, we are of all men the most unfaithful—the most unfaithful to the loving hearts who suffered in this war, the most unfaithful to those households bowed in grief and yet lifted with the feeling that the lad laid down his life for a great thing, and, among other things, in order that other lads might never have to do the same thing."

"That is what the League of Nations is for—to end this war justly and then not merely to serve no notice on governments which would contemplate the same things Germany contemplated that they will 'so at their peril' but also concerning the combination of power which will prove to them that they will do it at their peril. It is idle to say the world will combine against you; but it is persuasive to say the world is combined against you. The League of Nations is the only thing that can prevent the recurrence of this dreadful catastrophe and redeem our promises."

A League of Nations would have reverted the late conflict, the President asserted, explaining: "I did not meet a single public man who did not admit these things: that Germany would not have gone into this war if she thought Great Britain was going into it, and that she most certainly would never have gone into it had she dreamed America was going into it. And they all admit that a notice beforehand that the greatest powers of the world would combine to prevent this sort of thing would prevent it absolutely."

Applause and cheers greeted each declaration of the President that wars might be avoided in future by the operations of the league. He pointed out other important features of the peace treaty, how it was the redemption of weak nations, giving them freedom which otherwise they never could have won. How it says, "Those people have a right to live their own lives under governments which they themselves choose," and how "that is the American principle and I was glad to fight for it." That was the very heart of the treaty, he said.

He drew attention to the section of the treaty which is "Magna Charta of Labor," which shall dispose of the hours, conditions and remuneration of labor "for all time to come." "I said," which ought to have come long ago, when statesmen will realize that no nation is fortunate which is not contented, contented in their votes and fortunate in the circumstances of their lives."

CO-OPERATION IS NECESSARY

Interesting News Items, Briefly Condensed, Picked Up at the Departments, Which Are of Interest to the People of the State.

Harrisburg.—Governor William C. Sproul, on his return to the capital, after attending conferences at Salt Lake City, Washington and elsewhere, said he probably would call a meeting here within the next 10 days to consider questions relating to the high cost of foods.

The governor believes modern marketing conditions, if generally applied, would aid materially in cutting down present costs, and he favors a plan of co-operation between the various departments of the State and the State Welfare Commission.

It is likely the question of reducing the activities of the State Employment Bureau offices will be considered, also, for at the present time there are more requests for workers than there are workers. When the Welfare Commission is called to meet, Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, superintendent of public instruction; Frederick Rasmussen, secretary of agriculture; C. B. Connelley, commissioner of labor and industry, and other departmental heads will be called into conference.

"The widest interchange of views is necessary," said the governor, "before we can develop a workable solution to the marketing situation."

Gives "Hello" Ruling.
It is the duty of telephone patrons, particularly on party and other lines "where a considerable number of subscribers are dependent on the same wires, to use the telephone in such a manner as not unduly to interfere with the use of the line by other patrons" and a 15-minute conversation, except under unusual circumstances, is not fair, Chairman Ainey of the Public Service Commission, says in a recent ruling.

Can Operate Wooden Cars.
It is improbable that the Public Service Commission will take any position in regard to running of wooden cars on express trains on railroads of Pennsylvania, although such cars may be operated beside steel cars, owing to belief that the State does not have jurisdiction at present. Considerable has been said about the use of wooden cars, but no formal complaint has been filed.

Contracts Not Bid On.
What may become a serious situation in regard to State highway construction developed here recently when six contracts of 27 offered were not bid upon and on others only one or two bids were received. On only a few were there more than three bids. Labor conditions and the material situation were generally assigned as the reasons for the failure of contractors to bid.

More Experts Sent.
Additional experts and agents of the State Agricultural Department have been detailed to go into the anthracite field to observe the conditions of the potato crop, this being the region in which the potato wart disease appeared in such serious phase last year.

"Flu" Cases Milder.
Officials of the Department of Health say reports received on inquiries into cases of influenza occurring in York, Luzerne and other counties of Pennsylvania do not indicate that it is an unusual type of disease and that it does not show signs of the preliminary cases at the serious outbreak which occurred about 11 months ago in this State.

Surcharge Is Abrogated.
The State Insurance Department has issued notice that the 10 per cent advance or surcharge which has been in effect on fire insurance premiums, as a national war-time increase, since November 21, 1917, has been abrogated on all new business written on and after September 1, 1919.

For Guard Organization.
Further steps for the preliminary organization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania will be taken this month by Adjutant General Beary and Major General Price, the commanding officer.

Has Good Balance.
The State of Pennsylvania had $18,150,278.15 in the various funds of the State Treasury at the close of August business, compared with $18,650,921.89 a month ago. The largest item in the balances is $12,116,509.78 in the road construction fund.

Pardon Board To Meet.
The State Board of Pardons will open its session here September 17. It has been announced. Some applications for pardons have already been received.

THE WEST IS IN THE SADDLE

WILL IT CAPTURE THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION IN 1920?

"The political center of gravity in the nation has shifted * * * to the states that lie between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Coast."—New York Times editorial.

This opinion is typical of an idea which is rapidly spreading throughout the country. There is a feeling that "the West is in the saddle for the presidential nomination in 1920."

The fact that the West decided the last presidential election has made it a potent factor in future calculations. Moreover, the politicians know that in case the woman suffrage constitutional amendment does not become operative in time for the next national election there are, nevertheless, 16 states west of the Mississippi which have already given their women the franchise, adding an increment of some six million votes, which might easily turn the election one way or the other. Hence, the Republican leaders of the East as well as of the West are seriously considering whether it would not be good politics to take a western candidate.

It is significant that three of the most generally talked about presidential possibilities for 1920 come from the Far West. They are United States Senators Poindexter, Borah and Johnson.

The first mentioned, about whom considerable discussion is now centering, is from the state of Washington. Though a native of Tennessee and graduate of a Virginia university, Poindexter chose the Pacific Northwest as his field for life work, opening a law practice in Walla Walla, Wash., in 1891. Later he was judge of the superior court, and attracted much favorable attention by his judicial ability. In 1908 Poindexter was elected as a representative from the state of Washington to the Sixty-first Congress. He soon became known as an able, progressive Republican. In the senate, to which he was elevated in 1910, he was a staunch advocate of measures favoring the control and restriction of big corporations, especially of the railroads. He sought the conservation of all natural resources of the country, including water power, coal and oil lands. Before the war he stood strongly for preparedness, and later he vigorously supported all measures of the administration for the protection of American rights. He advocated throwing the whole power of the nation into the successful prosecution of the war.

Mr. Poindexter believes that Bolshevism and all other movements destructive of representative government and national spirit should be strongly taken in hand and that leaders in attempts to overthrow our institutions should be severely punished. He is opposed to any scheme for creating a hybrid government of the world where-by Europe and Asia, in his opinion, would inevitably dominate this country and control its policies.

Hiram Johnson, a native of California, was governor of the state before he was chosen senator. He is extremely popular in that commonwealth and will be strongly backed in his fight for the Presidential nomination.

Johnson was successful, after a long struggle, in ridding California of the domination of the Southern Pacific. For years the political machine of the railway held the state within its hand, and without the sanction and support of this great power candidates for state or judicial offices could not be elected. Johnson, first as counsel for interests opposing the railroad corporation and later as governor, waged a bitter and unremitting warfare against railroad domination. His final victory was a potent factor in his election to the senate in 1916. Johnson is a Republican, but generally regarded as one of the radical type. He has, like Poindexter, strongly opposed the League of Nations.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho does not differ greatly in the degree of his achievements from the two other westerners. Born in Wayne county, Ill., Borah was educated in the common schools of that state and at Kansas State University. He was admitted to the bar in 1890 and devoted his time to legal practice until his election to the senate in 1907. Borah is one of the most active figures in the United States senate. His efforts largely have been directed toward the proper development of the great natural resources of the country, especially of the West. He is known as a progressive Republican, fearless in fighting for what he believes to be right and, like the others included in this presidential group, has opposed from the start the League of Nations covenant.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast is a long jump for national politics to take. However, all precedents, both in business and politics, seem to be vanishing in these days of remarkable readjustments, and the old theory that a Presidential candidate must necessarily come from east of the Mississippi is no longer tenable.

What's the use, Folks— What's the Use!

WHY take honest-to-John Tobacco that nature grew for us all—and then “spill the beans” by messing it up with lolly pops?

Velvet isn't fooled with that way.

Velvet has just naturally relied on Nature since it was knee-high to a grasshopper.

First, off, it was bred in old Kentucky, wonderland of Tobacco.

Next come, it was cured in the open air, right out with the good ole sunshine. Yes sir.

THEN it was gentled along by its lonesome for two years, while it just kind of thought things over and decided to have no bad qualities.

After these two years in wooden hogsheads it was packed in the jolly red tin you see everywhere, if you're not color blind—and we hope you're not.

As Velvet Joe says:

“The way Nature does things is best for man and his tobacco. You can't fool Nature—an' she won't fool you.”

FIFTEEN cents seems a pickayune price, doesn't it, after all that?

Can you think, right off, of anything more or better for a dime and a nickel? And for cigarette smokers—there are 45 mellow cigarettes in every Velvet tin.

Velvet sure will be right glad to meet you this very day.

Good Printing

THE kind of printing that pays dividends is the kind you should have. Pale, muddy, poorly arranged printed matter is worse than none. The quality of your business is often judged by the quality of your stationery—inferior printing gives an impression of cheapness that is hard to overcome, while good printing carries with it a desirable suggestion of quality.

We produce only Quality Printing. Whether you want an inexpensive handbill or a letterhead in colors, if you order it from us you will be sure of getting good work. We have the equipment and the “know how” that enables us to get out really good printing—printing that impresses people with the good taste of its users. That is the only kind of printing that that the essentials of such a building are fresh air, dryness, sunlight and sufficient space so that the fowls will not be crowded. Usually each fowl should be allowed four square feet of floor space. If available, scrap lumber from dry-goods boxes, etc., can be utilized to construct such a house. The cost will be considerably less than when lumber is purchased. If sufficient lumber is not available for the entire house a rough framework well covered with ordinary roofing or tarpaper will answer the immediate needs.

When the heavier fowls (Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, etc.) are kept all females should be disposed of at the end of their second year, inasmuch as in most cases they will cease to be profitable at the end of that time. The lighter breeds (Leghorns, etc.), however, can be profitably kept as long as three years. By disposing of the hens in this way a part of the flock must be renewed each year. Consequently, considering that the percentage of cockerets and pullets is usually about the same, and that a certain percentage will die before reaching maturity, it is customary to hatch more chicks each year than there are, hens in the flock.

Overfeeding kills more chicks than underfeeding.

Little and often is a good feeding rule for newly hatched chicks.

Eggs for incubator hatching should be fresh, the fresher the better.

This is the time of year when poultry quarters need to be made safe from rats.

Ducklings should be ready for the green duck market at from ten to fourteen weeks of age.

A good, well-regulated incubator will hatch eggs with far more certainty and do it more cheaply than can be done with hens.

Much of the trouble often found in brooding chicks is due alone to feeding too early, or in excess during the first few days.

Scales on chicken's legs are caused by a mite. This mite can best be controlled and disposed of by the use of heavy black crude oil.

PURPOSE OF A SMALL FLOCK

It is Primarily for Eggs and Therefore Fowls Should Be Fed With This End in View.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The actual purpose of keeping a small flock of fowls is primarily for egg production. Consequently they should be fed with this end in view. Practically every housewife has a quantity of table scraps, vegetable peelings and “leftovers” that can be utilized by feeding to hens. Supplementary to such feed, however, a grain and dry mash should be provided in order to produce the best results. By supplying the fowls with all available table scraps it will usually cost from 50 to 75 cents a year per fowl for grain and other feeds. A good egg laying ration should consist of the following: Three parts corn meal and one part beef scrap mixed together and fed in a dry-mash hopper to which the fowls will have access at all times. In addition to this a scratch ration consisting of equal parts cracked corn and oats should be fed twice daily. When no table scraps are available it will take about one quart of scratch grain daily for twelve to fourteen fowls. However, this can be reduced when table scraps are fed and a certain amount of natural green feed, such as grass, is available. In providing the fowls with a suitable house it should be remembered

DO NOT NEGLECT HERD BOAR

Management Is Important Part in Raising Strong, Healthy Pigs—Deserves Best Care.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The management of the boar is a very important part in the raising of strong, healthy pigs, and one which is sometimes neglected. He should be the most valuable animal in the whole herd, and as such deserves the best of attention. The boar should be purchased from a breeder of pure-bred hogs when between eight months and one year of age. Many breeders, however, purchase a boar when a weanling pig, but to be successful in this choice requires a wide experience and sound judgment. Aged boars which have proved their worth can sometimes be purchased at a reasonable price. It is much safer for an inexperienced breeder to buy an old, active boar than a young untried boar. If possible, the farmer should visit the herd where the boar was raised and note the conditions under which he was bred. At any rate, it is always possible to obtain from the breeder notes on the health and kind and amount of feeds used, so as to serve as an index to his subsequent treatment.

Upon arriving at the farm the boar should be unloaded as soon as possible and placed in quarantine to guard against the introduction of disease into the herd. If he is lousy it is well to treat this condition at once. His feed should be a continuation of that to which he has been accustomed, feeding rather lightly the first few days until he recovers from the strain of shipping and becomes accustomed to his new surroundings. If it is not feasible to continue feeding as previously indicated, the change to a more convenient ration should be made very gradually in order not to disturb the appetite or health of the animal. As a rule, a pig 8 to 12 months old will be in proper breeding condition when received unless he has been very heavily overfed. In purchasing an older boar, particularly one which has been in the show circuit, it is often necessary to reduce his condition before attempting to breed. With some animals the breeding power is permanently impaired by too high condition at some time in their life. The boar should be well fed but not fat, as a too high condition makes him inactive, a slow breeder, and a rather uncertain sire.

After the breeding season the boar should not be fed so heavily, and should have a wider ration, that is, one containing less of the protein concentrates and relatively more corn. The ration at this time is practically the same as that fed the brood sow when she is not producing a litter of pigs. He should have the run of a pasture a quarter of an acre in area in connection with his paddock. Here he can exercise and obtain much of his feed from the forage, or in the winter when the forage is consumed he may be fed on alfalfa or clover hay in connection with the grain ration. Keep the boar healthy, give him exercise, plenty of rough feeds, and keep him in condition by varying his supply of grain. Under such conditions little trouble will be experienced in getting a normal boar to produce large litters of strong, healthy pigs.

PIG CLUB MEMBERS PROSPER

Some Have Been at Work Long Enough to Have Porks for Sale and Make Money.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Pig club members in Florida are working up an industry among themselves. Some of the members who have been in club work long enough to have some pigs for sale are disposing of their stock to other club members. One club boy has sold $100 worth of pigs to club members this year. Another, who joined the pig club two years ago, is now furnishing pigs to other members, and says he is glad he went into the club work, and believes that every boy and girl who can do so should join.

ATTENTION TO BROOD SOWS

After Weaning Her Pigs She Should Be Kept on Pasture and Fed Gaining Grain Ration.

The sow having weaned her pigs, should be kept on pasture and fed a gaining grain ration to build up her system and flesh for re-breeding, and provide nourishment for the oncoming fall litter.

POULTRY NOTES

Do not overcrowd the houses, brood coops, brooder or colony coops.

Everything must be kept clean in warm weather to keep vermin down.

Turkey hens usually lay about fifteen eggs before beginning to get broody.

Poultry can endure warm weather just as well as they can freezing weather.

In rainy cold weather young chicks should be kept where it is dry and warm.

CROPPING PLAN FOR POULTRY

By Using Two Yards Alternately Fowls May Be Supplied With Green Food Year Round.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Green food for poultry may be provided throughout the year in a large portion of the country by using two yards alternately; that is, a crop is pastured in one yard while another crop is growing in the second yard. The following plan is suggested by specialists of the department, as adapted to moderate climatic conditions.

Feeding a Flock of Pure Breds.

The crop grown should be the one best suited to the particular locality. For the extreme North or South the dates should be modified. Thickly sown crops furnish succulent food and summer shade.

HANDY LIGHT-HANDLED RAKE

Eggs Laid in Litter at Rear of House May Be Gathered Without Crawling for Them.

In most large poultry houses some of the hens will lay in the litter at the rear of the house beneath the dropping boards. It is a nuisance to have to crawl under after these eggs and it pays to have a light-handled rake in the poultry house to assist in gathering them. They can be slowly raked out of the litter with little danger of breakage.

MY HEAD!

When the head feels thick or aches, when one feels all out-of-sorts—perhaps a coated tongue—it is the signal that poisons are accumulating in the system, and should be cleaned out at once.

Auto-intoxication can be best ascribed to our own neglect or carelessness. When the organs fail in the discharge of their duties, the putrefactive germs set in and generate toxins—actual poisons, which fill one's own body.

Sleepiness after meals, flushing of the face, extreme lassitude, biliousness, dizziness, sick headache, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, offensive breath, anemia, loss of weight and muscular power, decrease of vitality or lowering of resistance to infectious diseases, disturbance of the eye, dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, many forms of catarrh, asthma, ear affections and allied ailments result from auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

The Braganza Diamond.

The Braganza diamond is a great mystery. Very few people have ever been allowed the privilege of looking at it, and of these few some are of the opinion it is not a diamond at all, but merely a wonderful specimen of white topaz. At any rate, it is generally conceded to be a diamond and is considered the jewel supreme of the crown jewels of the late reigning house of Portugal, the ancestral family of the duke of Braganza.

FARM POULTRY

QUALITY AND UTILITY FOWLS

Breeders Encouraged to Develop Flocks Along Breeding Lines for Good Production.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

A hen, in order to be classed as a genuinely good one, should be equally capable of going in the show ring and taking a ribbon or of going on the yard and making a record as a layer. And the breeder, in order to get the advantage of the best and broadest markets, must breed for a combination of utility and standard quality instead of following the tendency to become either a fancier or a utility breeder. That is the advice of Rob B. Slocum, a poultry specialist of the United States department of agriculture, and it is based largely on results obtained on the poultry farm of the department at Beltsville, Md., where many of the exhibition males used have 200-egg production in their pedigrees.

"Except in a few more or less isolated cases," says Mr. Slocum, "there is nothing in the standard requirements directly opposed to utility, and the buyers during the past few years have shown an increasingly insistent demand for fowls that have egg-producing ability back of them."

Fanciers, Mr. Slocum points out, are too prone to put the appearance of the fowl above everything else, and thus to neglect the egg-laying quality, while, on the other hand, unsuccessful fanciers are likely to turn completely to the egg-production side of breeding without any attention to "points."

Quality and Utility Are Combined in This White Plymouth Rock Hen of the Flock on the Government Farm at Beltsville, Md.—Though of a Family of Show Birds, She Has Made a Good Record as a Layer.

Either of these attitudes, he says, is an obstruction to the best development of poultry raising in the United States. "The department of agriculture," he continues, "encourages poultry breeders to develop flocks along breeding lines to secure a combination of good production, vigor, and uniform type. That goal is readily attainable through careful selection of breeding stock, and those who follow the policy suggested may confidently expect the most attractive markets."

"Trench Coat" Was Baker's Name At War Front

"Trench Coat" will be at your front July 27, at 1 P. M. A message like this flashed from one American headquarters to another last year meant that the Secretary of War was coming to inspect the sector.

The name of "Trench Coat" was derived from the fact that the Secretary always wore a trench coat, steel helmet and rubber boots while at the front, and was used to hide Mr. Baker's identity from German who might pick up the message.

P. R. Shopmen Rejects Four Cent Raise But Won't Strike

The railroad shopmen have voted overwhelmingly to reject President Wilson's proposal for a four cents an hour raise, but have also voted to leave the matter of strike action in the hands of their national officers.

The vote was announced by the Railway Department of the A. F. of L. after having been taken at the request of that organization in a letter sent out last week pointing out to the men that something definite should be known of the results of Government efforts to reduce the high cost of living which should be known within 90 days.

Oysters—How to Use Them

With the advent of the "R" months, the oyster comes into the lime light and will stay with us until next May.

Many housewives do not get the full benefit from the use of oysters. In most homes, they are prepared in less than a half dozen ways. According to the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries oysters could be served every day for three months without serving them in the same manner twice.

The Bureau of Fisheries has prepared a booklet telling a little of their history and containing an even hundred receipts for their use.

Readers of the GAZETTE may obtain a copy of this booklet free by asking for E. C. 18, addressing their request to the Bureau of Fisheries, Dept. of Commerce Washington, D. C. Do not enclose return postage.

Gen. Pershing Given Old Rank

The U. S. Senate having passed unanimously the House bill restoring the rank of general in the Army and bestowing it upon Gen. Pershing, the President promptly sent in Gen. Pershing's nomination for the office. Breaking all precedents, the nomination was considered in open session in the Senate and by a rising vote was unanimously confirmed. Resolutions are pending and will be passed to make the day of the review of the 1st Division, with Gen. Pershing at its head, a national event and a legal holiday in the District of Columbia.

Prohibition Enforcement Bill Passed Senate

The Prohibition enforcement bill was passed by the Senate and now goes to conference between the Senate and the House. The bill was passed after debate lasting two days. As finally passed through, the bill was practically in the same form as when it reached the Senate judiciary committee.

The Senate refused to amend the bill so as to make it mandatory on the courts to impose jail sentences as well as fines on convicted violators.

President's War Fund Nearly Gone

President Wilson recently sent to the House of Representatives a report showing how he expended the $50,000,000 war fund granted last year by Congress.

Prior to the receipt of the statement from the White House the House appropriations committee reported out a resolution calling on the President for an itemized statement showing how he expended the $50,000,000 fund, and the $100,000,000 fund granted him in 1917.

More than a score of Government agencies shared in the $50,000,000 war fund according to the President's statement, and there remains $2,899,429 unexpended.

The largest amount, $12,393,245 went to the State Department.

LABOR CONFERENCE EARLY IN OCTOBER

President Wilson's industrial conference between labor, capital and agriculture interests, which will attempt to work out a solution of the present economic crisis, will be held in Washington between October 5 and 10. Not more than 45 representatives will be included in the meeting, and Mr. Wilson himself likely will preside.

The President has requested the United States Chamber of Commerce and other organizations to submit to him nominations for delegates representing each group. Receiving this list, the President will select a list of his own and compose a conference from the lists. It was said at the White House that the President had not yet made his own selections and would not do so until he had seen the other lists.

Invitations will be sent out by the President while he is on his speaking trip.

FIRST AID TO THE INJURED

This little booklet issued by the U. S. Public Health Service contains a wealth of information on this vital subject. It describes a simple first aid outfit, how to rescue the drowning, resuscitation, artificial respiration, treatment of wounds, snake bites, bruises and poisons. It will fit in your inside pocket and will prove decidedly helpful.

You may obtain a copy of this booklet free by addressing a postal card to the U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C. Ask for "Keep Well Series Booklet No. 5."

President's Bill at Paris is $1,506,776

The American participation in the Paris peace treaty conference up to July 1, cost approximately $1,250,624, according to President Wilson, who estimated that by the end of the calendar year will amount to $1,506,776. He asked Congress for an additional $250,000 to square the account. The President informed Congress that he considered the expenditures "very modest" considering abnormal prices in Paris.

Included in the list of expenses are two interesting items one for $14,602 for purchase of automobiles and $13,597 for "confidential expenses."

When the American peace mission began its work it had a personnel of 1,300 but by July 1 this had been reduced to 400, only 88 of whom were civilians.

Correct Feeding of Horses

Prices Dropping Says Dept. of Justice

Prices of all commodities have passed the peak and have started downward, declared Judge Ames, in charge of the Department of Justice price and profiteering probe.

Not only is the downward trend noticeable in food prices and in the prices of wearing apparel, shoes, etc., but it is to be detected in commodities that do not enter into consumption.

Americans generally are expressing little sympathy for those American Millionaires who married foreigners and whose American wealth now is tied up in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian.

Nudges

The Union School Teacher has complained that the roof on the school building leaks when it rains. The Board of Directors informed him it had been leaking for several years and that other teachers put up with it and they see no reason why he should not. The teacher is very anxious to "make good" with the Board and will say nothing more about it.

The Old County Commissioners have announced that they will be candidates for re-election and endorsement. They during the past term have done what is right and that a good man in a good place had better not be exchanged for a poor man in a poor place. The other fellows are making the race but the present incumbents feel that with the record they have made during this term they have nothing to fear.

St. Robinson says the recommendations from the higher-ups that the people, in order to reduce the cost of living wear their old clothes and wear them patched if necessary, hit him just right, as he was going to have to do that any way.

In a discussion at the blacksmith shop yesterday morning it was unanimously agreed that the people could get along better with high priced clothing than they could on high-priced food.

The editor of the Bedford Bugle said something in his paper last week in the wrong tone of voice about fellow over on Turtle Creek, and as a result there was no issue of the Bugle this week, though the editor hopes to be able to come out again next week. Week before last the editor of the Bugle was whipped by a farmer from Dry Ridge for underestimating the size of a pumpkin he had grown. Last year he was whipped by another party for misrepresenting a pumpkin, and it is feared that if these things continue it may tend to cause the editor to get to exaggerating and if he does there is no telling how large he will have to make George Shipley's pumpkins to make him keep the peace.
